Q.1 An association agreement has been drafted between the Ukraine and the EU that establishes a political and economic association between the parties along with a free trade area. As part of the agreement the Ukraine is also required to converge economic policies and legislation to those of the EU. The association agreement is a necessary step towards full EU membership. On April 6th the Netherlands is holding a referendum on this association agreement between the Ukraine and the EU. Do you think the authorities in the United Kingdom should or should not hold similar referendums on whether new countries are able to have political and economic associations with the EU?
