Q.A On May 22nd the election is taking place for the UK members of the European Parliament. Many people who always vote in general elections are telling us they may not vote in these European Parliament Elections - and the last time these elections were held, in 2009, two thirds of UK voters did not vote. If the elections for the European Parliament were being held now, please say how likely you would be to vote - on a scale of 1-10, where 1 means you definitely would not vote, and 10 means you would be absolutely certain to vote.

Q.C The following statements have been made by different people who are intending to vote for UKIP in the European Parliament elections in May. Please say in each case if you agree or disagree.

The only way to get Britain out of the EU is to have an in/out referendum and the only realistic way to get a referendum is to have a Conservative government. So even though I have no enthusiasm for them, I will probably vote Conservative at the general election
