		The UK should play a leading role in tackling global corporate tax avoidance	It's OK for some countries to offer significantly lower tax rates than the rest of the world in order to attract big businesses who are looking to minimise their tax bills	I trust Rishi Sunak and Boris Johnson to take on big business interests and tackle global tax avoidance	Not working with America, Germany and other G7 countries makes the UK weaker on the world stage	Companies like Amazon reported higher profits during the pandemic than high street stores, so they should contribute more tax towards the recovery
